

Richard D. Willis

Director, Transition Training Academy

Richard Willis is a disabled veteran of the United States Air Force, who served on active duty February 1981 to March 2001. Richard began working with Wounded Warrior Project May 2009; his role at the time was Regional Instruction and Recruitment Coordinator. Over the years, Richard has taken on increased responsibilities and is currently the Director of the Transition Training Academy.

In this role he manages teammates throughout the country who assist WWP Alumni, through technical training classes in CompTIA Certifications A+, Network+ and Security+. His experience in developing successful training programs and program management has enabled him to create this highly successful training program across the nation.

Prior to joining WWP, Richard worked with the Armed Services Blood Program, where he was responsible for ensuring the armed service blood and platelet needs were met on a daily and monthly basis. After leaving the ASBP, he was recruited by several corporations to evaluate and correct deficiencies in their training programs, which led him to his current role with WWP.

Richard is married to his lovely wife Esther, and has three children, Cynthia, Catherine and Jacob and four grandchildren. When able to take a break from work, Richard enjoys hunting and fishing in the Texas hill country.
